Excerpt: .they are shorter, having receded to the margin of the cartilage which is not subject to concussion. In the foetal subject this band is more broad in some parts than others; but those portions of it which project to an inconsiderable extent over the surface of the cartilage, have, on the opposite part of the circumference, others which project to a considerable extent. Various Characters of the Synovial Vessels.--These synovial vessels consist of arteries which take a direction towards the centre of the articular cartilage, and of veins which take a retrograde course. The arteries become continuous with the veins in the following ways: --1st, the artery becomes directly continuous with the vein without undergoing any change in its size, forming with the latter a simple loop (Plate XIII. fig. 1.); 2ndly, numerous arteries terminate in a single vessel from which veins arise; (this disposition is evident in the knee-joint, Plate XIV. fig. 2. and Plate XIII. fig. 5.); 3rdly, the artery terminates in largely dilated vessels, from which the veins take their origin, Plate XIII. figs. 3 and 4. The preceding account of the examination of the vessels of articulations at early periods, shows that a large quantity of blood-vessels exists both at the free and attached surface of articular cartilage during its development. The modes in which these vessels are disposed, the dilated, plexiform, and other characters which they present at the point of communication of the arterial with the venous system, are...
