Notice the confession of Judas, and the marks of his sincerity. 3. Adduce some plain and pointed evidences of his salvation. In illustrating the character of this disciple, some of the audience will doubtless be disappointed in not finding his life marked with a continued series of the most flagrant crime: for it has become habitual to associate the name of Judas with whatever is detestable in the human character. As there is no authentic history of the life and character of Judas, save that with which we are furnished in the scriptures, an easy path-way is now open for us to derive the necessary information from a source whose authority will not be called in question by any professor of the christian religion. The testimony recorded in St. Matthew x. 1--8. will assist us to discover the rank which he held, and the important labour assigned him, as well as the rest of the apostles, by the great Redeemer. And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness, and all manner of disease.! Now the names of the twelve apostles are: these: The first, Simon, who is called Pe-j ter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zehedee, and John his brother; Phi-j lip, and Bartholomew, Thomas, and Mat-J thew the publican; James the son of Al-i pheus, and...
