They must be plainly told that special hospitals are often merely private speculations, intended for the benefit of one individual, doing nothing for science, and nothing for true charity, and conferring none of the benefits of a bona fida benevolent institution. We have said enough to indicate further how demoralising must be the effect of the success of the promoters of these institutions upon the rising generation of medical practitioners. PHARMACY IN IRELAND. A Peaceful revolution of the relation of Pharmacy to Medicine in Ireland is proceeding from week to week, respecting the course of which little is known, yet much interest is felt. The Irish Pharmaceutical Council has held two sittings, and is to hold a third on this day week. At the first meeting the business transacted was quite formal, and consisted in appointing a temporary clerk, and in taking a ballot to...
